ISO: RAPID EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Changing Communities One Job at a Time

Many families in Greater Prince William are struggling with the effects of underemployment. These are hard-working people holding down two and sometimes three jobs just to provide the necessities for their families. Underemployment causes:

- financial stress (a key factor in housing instability)
- negative physical wellbeing
- psychological and emotional trauma

Rapid Employment (RE) Opportunities can provide an immediate bridge from underemployment to sustainable careers with growth potential. These programs don't just help people find jobs; they transform families, invigorate neighborhoods, and restore dignity and hope.

What Are Rapid Employment Programs? RE programs are workforce initiatives designed to place individuals into career-launching jobs quickly (90 days or less) while offering support services that increase long-term job retention and career success.

Immediate Impact for Families and Communities. RE can break generational poverty, prevent eviction, improve mental health, and reduce crime.

The Alliance is eager to identify local Rapid Employment Opportunities. If you manage a RE program or know of one, please email info@alliancegpw.org.

Together we all win.

Community Care Innovation Collaborative

Action Learning: making the Value Case for Health-Related Social Supports

If your organization needs to make the value case for providing health-related social supports, this program is for you.

The Community Care Innovation Collaborative supports the development of community strategies that connect people in need to health-related social supports. The scope of these supports can include food, housing, utilities, transportation, social connection, personal safety, personal assistance, education, legal assistance, service coordination, and other health-related social needs.

With this in mind, we are excited to introduce Making the Value Case for Health-Related Social Supports, an action learning program from the Community Care Innovation Collaborative. The program is virtual, time-efficient, and offered at no cost to all Collaborative members.

The program: Making the Value Case for Health-Related Social Supports

Where and when: Online from June 26 through August 7

Who it's for: Individuals and teams from community-based organizations, health care providers, health plans, public agencies, and others providing health-related social supports of any kind.

What you'll learn: A six-step model for making the value case to your particular audiences. Steps include: 1) Understand your audience, 2) define your objectives, 3) create your value story, 4) select your value indicators, 5) design your communication strategy, 6) make the value case.

The webinar dates: Three webinars from 2 pm to 3 pm on June 26, July 10, and July 24
