Health Care Access and Testing for Coronavirus, COVID-19

Know the signs and symptoms of COVID-19 and what to do if you feel sick.

- Symptoms of COVID-19 primarily include fever, cough, and shortness of breath. These symptoms can show up between 2 and 14 days after exposure.
- Stay home if you feel sick, except to get medical care. Get plenty of rest and drink lots of fluids. Limit visitors and limit your movement in the community. Call a doctor's office in advance of a visit.

Virginia residents can call the Virginia Department of Health public information line, 877-ASK-VDH3 (877.275.8343), for questions about the novel coronavirus situation

Your healthcare provider/doctor will determine if you need to be tested for COVID-19. If the healthcare provider determines that testing is indicated, they might either collect samples to test you or provide you with information about where to go locally for testing.

For free testing, go to a community health center or Center for Disease testing location after going to your doctor's office. Find a community health clinic here or call 877-ASK-VDH3 (877.275.8343).

Call your local service provider if you will be experiencing delayed payments in the future or need additional information.

Cell Phone and Regular Bill Payments

Many internet and phone companies are waiving late fees, suspending terminations, offering free international calls, expanding data usage limits, and even free service.

Check with local service providers to see what they can assist you with and to notify if you need assistance.

Housing Rights

Your Rights as a Tenant During COVID-19 Outbreak (Current as of March 23, 2020)

Your landlord must take you to court to evict you:

- Your landlord cannot evict you without a court order, no matter what your lease says.
- You do not have to move out just because the landlord tells you to leave, gives you a “5 Day Pay or Quit” or other written notice, or files an eviction lawsuit (“unlawful detainer”) against you.

Court closures:

- Courts have stopped hearing unlawful detainer cases until at least April 6, 2020.
- We do not know when the courts will schedule new eviction cases.
- Still, if you have an unlawful detainer case scheduled for the next few weeks, you should check with the court to find out when it will be heard. You can also look up your case and find the court’s phone number by visiting <http://www.courts.state.va.us/courts/gd.html>.
- You can still go to the court for emergencies, like if your landlord illegally locks you out.

It is illegal for your landlord to shut off utilities or lock you out without a court order:

- If the landlord locks you out or cuts off heat, water, gas, or electricity without a court order, you can call your local sheriff or police for help.
- You can also sue your landlord to get back into your home and get utilities turned back on. The courts are still hearing emergency cases like these, called “unlawful exclusions.”

Your landlord still has a duty to do repairs and maintenance:

- Even with the COVID-19 outbreak the landlord must still provide you with a safe and healthy place to live.
- If something breaks, send your landlord a letter asking for repairs right away.

Your utilities, including water and electricity, should not be cut off:

- The State Corporate Commission has told electric, gas, and water companies not to cut service for non-payment until the COVID-19 crisis ends.
- If your Dominion Energy service was recently cut off, call 1-866-366-4357 to get reconnected.

If you are facing eviction, if your landlord attempts to lock you out without taking you to court, or if you have questions about your rights, contact your local legal aid by calling 1-866-LEGL-AID or get legal advice from the Eviction Legal Helpline by calling 1-833-NoEvict. Visit VaLegalAid.org for more information.

Small Business

Small Business Administration

Virginia received a statewide Economic Injury Disaster Loan declaration from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA). Small businesses and non-profit organizations located throughout the state can now apply for a loan of up to $2 million from the SBA to pay fixed debts, payroll, accounts payable, and other expenses.

To submit a loan application for the SBA Economic Injury Disaster Loan program, please visit: <https://disasterloan.sba.gov/ela/>.

For assistance in filling out this form contact the Small Business Administration customer service center at 1-800-659-2955 (TTY: 1-800-877-8339) or email disastercustomerservice@sba.gov.

Small Business State Taxes

Businesses impacted by COVID-19 can also request to defer the payment of state sales tax due March 20, 2020, for 30 days. When granted, businesses will be able to file no later than April 20, 2020 with a waiver of any penalties. For business owners, Virginia Tax will consider requests from sales tax dealers for an extension of the due date for filing and payment of the February 2020 sales tax return due on March 20, 2020. If the request is granted, filing and payment of the return will be due on April 20, 2020, with a waiver of any penalties that would have applied.

However, interest will accrue even if an extension is granted. Virginia Tax has created a COVID-19 information page on the agency's website to share critical messages with taxpayers. Here's the link: <https://www.tax.virginia.gov/coronavirus>

Any state income tax payments due during the time period of April 1, 2020, to June 1, 2020, will now be due on June 1, 2020. This includes individual and corporate income taxes paid to Virginia Tax. Late payment penalties will not be charged if payments are made by June 1, 2020, however, interest will still accrue.

Certain cities and counties are putting forth effort for small businesses relief or taxes. Visit their website for more information.
